

Woodwind technician

Swedens leading windinstrument company is looking for instrument technician for full-time job our Stockholm location.

The job

We are currently looking for a woodwind technician, specialized in one or preferably several of the following instruments: clarinet, flute, or saxophone.

If you have repair experience from double reed or brasswind, even better.

You will be joining a team of two highly skilled technicians (one for woodwind and one for brass) and a sales team. We are located in central Stockholm, where we offer and repair wind instruments for musicians of all levels from beginners to professionals.

About us:

Windcorp was founded in 2000, but the company's origin dates back to 1977. We have stores in Stockholm, Malmö and Göteborg, and are the only group of stores specialized in Woodwind and Brasswind in Scandinavia. We also operate a wholesale company under the name Javi Musik.

Working directly with our suppliers and our close relationship with our customers and our market is our major strength.

Yanagisawa, Miyazawa, Muramatsu, Pearl Flutes, Jupiter, Backun, Yamaha, Selmer, and the Buffet Group are just a few of the brands we represent.

We are informal, social, committed, and have long term relationships with our customers and suppliers. And of course, we love music and life around it.

Your profile:

You are a trained instrument technician and you probably have some experience from previous employments. You are used to meeting customers and have a great sense of service.

As a person, you work structured and independently, but you also enjoy sharing your knowledge with colleagues.

You are prepared to be in a small business unit where you sometimes need to step in to help a colleague or customer. You are service-minded, flexible, helpful, and have a positive view of life.

Salary and terms of employment:

We are looking for a full-time colleague. Salary according to qualifications. Accession as soon as possible. The position is in our store in Stockholm
